Strange Bedfellows Russell Peterson,2008-03-05 It is no coincidence that presidential candidates have been making it a point to add the late night comedy circuit to the campaign trail in recent years In 2004 when John Kerry decided it was time to do his first national television interview he did not choose CBS s 60 Minutes ABC s Nightline or NBC Nightly News Kerry picked Comedy Central s The Daily Show When George W Bush was lagging in the polls his appearance on the David Letterman Show gave him a measurable boost Candidates for the 2008 presidential election began their late night bookings almost as soon as they launched their campaigns How can this be The reason is that polls have been consistently finding that a significant number of Americans and an even larger proportion of those under the age of thirty get at least some of their news about politics and national affairs from comedy shows While this trend toward what some have called infotainment seems to herald the descent of our national discourse the triumph of entertainment over substance the reality according to Russell L Peterson is more complex He explains that this programming is more than a mere replacement for traditional news outlets it plays its own role in shaping public perception of government and the political process From Johnny Carson to Jon Stewart from Chevy Chase s spoofing of President Ford on Saturday Night Live to Stephen Colbert s roasting of President Bush at the White House Correspondents Dinner Strange Bedfellows explores what Americans have found so funny about our political institutions and the people who inhabit them and asks what this says about the health of our democracy Comparing the mainstream network hosts Jay Dave Conan and Johnny before them who have always strived to be equal opportunity offenders to the newer edgier crop of comedians on cable networks Peterson shows how each brand of satire plays off a different level of Americans frustrations with politics
