Banks as Security Actors Esmé Bosma, 2025-04-22 This book analyses how banks implement counter terrorist financing measures and experiment with technologies to assess risks and make security decisions Banks have become private security actors As gatekeepers of the financial system they are legally obliged to conduct customer research and monitor bank accounts for unusual or suspicious transactions Given the sheer volume of financial transactions that banks process daily detection of financial crime heavily relies on digital security technologies that help analysts categorise and identify risky customers and financial transactions Drawing from theories at the intersection of International Relations and Science and Technology Studies the book advances the concept of de scription to offer a framework for analysing experimentation with security and digital technologies in practice The research is based on fieldwork conducted in the financial crime sector in the Netherlands and the United Kingdom It explores how political and ethical choices materialise at the human technology interface and analyses the production of customer risk profiles the design and use of transaction monitoring systems and the emergence of public private partnerships to counter terrorist financing This book will be of interest to students and researchers in International Relations Science and Technology Studies and Critical Security Studies

Fragmentation and the European Patent System Karen Walsh, 2022-08-11 This book provides an in depth study on current perceptions of and responses to fragmentation in the European patent system EPS For decades attempts have been made to address this fragmentation by introducing a unitary patent system The most recent attempt the EU unitary patent system will be the first of its kind It is expected to significantly change the EPS However rather than reducing existing fragmentation it will likely add to it Based on an analysis of the current and forthcoming system the book argues that the inherent nature of fragmentation within the EPS needs to be recognised and suggests that a multifaceted approach is required to respond to it Uniquely it draws on work regarding fragmentation outside of the patent and intellectual property regimes gaining insights from both European law making and the international legal system These insights are used to investigate current responses to fragmentation in the EPS Interpretations of substantive patent law are examined including claim construction Actavis v Eli Lilly exceptions to patentability related to uses of human embryos for industrial or commercial purposes WARF Br stle ISCC and products resulting from essentially biological processes Broccoli and Tomatoes II G3 19 Attempts towards convergence in these areas have had mixed results and in some instances fragmentation may be necessary However similar techniques to those applied in the international legal system to respond to fragmentation are being used in the EPS and where this is seen it has been to good effect It is argued that these methods should be recognised structured and promoted to make our response to fragmentation more effective

Fragmentation and the European Patent System will be of interest to academics students and practitioners looking for a new perspective on the EPS
