How Management Accounting Information Supports Decision Making

---

QUESTIONS

- 1-1 Management accounting is a discipline that designs planning and performance measurement systems, using financial and nonfinancial information, to help an organization develop and implement its strategy. The information must be relevant and helpful, and customized to serve multiple purposes, such as making decisions, allocating resources, and monitoring, evaluating, and rewarding performance. Information for the “plan” and “do” steps of the PDCA cycle includes prospective data on costs, profits, efficiency, and quality associated with alternative ways to produce or provide goods or services. Shareholders and external suppliers of capital are not involved in managing the business or establishing and validating the company’s strategy. Therefore, they do not need the timely and disaggregate information generated for internal managerial uses. External capital suppliers will receive less timely (typically quarterly for shareholders, monthly for creditors) and more aggregate information. Also the form and accounting procedures used to prepare these external reports are constrained by regulation—such as by the country’s standard setting authorities and governmental regulatory agencies. This information may
