Life Science Memorandum June 2013:

Working Time, Knowledge Work and Post-Industrial Society A. O'Carroll, 2015-03-16 We are living in the age of imagination and communication This book about the new ways time is experienced and organised in post industrial workplaces argues that the key feature of working time within knowledge and other workplaces is unpredictability creating a culture that seeks to insert acceptance of unpredictability as a new standard Science, the State and the City Geoffrey Owen, Michael M. Hopkins, 2016-04-15 The book examines the evolution of one of the most important technologies that has emerged in the last fifty years biotechnology the use of living organisms or parts thereof to create useful products and services The most important application of biotechnology has been in medicine in the development of new drugs The central purpose of the book is to explain how firms based in the US took the lead in commercialising the technology and why it has been so difficult for firms in other countries to match what the leading American companies have achieved The book looks at the institutions and policies which have underpinned US success in biotechnology This is the US innovation ecosystem and it is made up of several interlocking elements which constitute a powerful competitive advantage for US biotechnology firms These include a higher education system which has close links with industry massive support from the Federal government for biomedical research and a financial system which is well equipped to support young entrepreneurial firms in a science based industry In the light of US experience the book examines in detail the performance of UK biotechnology firms over the past forty years starting with the creation of the UK's first dedicated biotech firm Celltech in 1980 The book shows how the UK made a promising start in the 1980s and 1990s but failed to build on it Several leading firms failed and after an initial burst of enthusiasm investors lost confidence in the British biotech sector It is only the last few years that the sector has staged a revival attracting fresh investment from the US as well from the UK The story told in this book based on extensive interviews with industry participants investors and policy makers in the UK Continental Europe and the US sheds new light on one of the central issues facing governments in the advanced industrial countries how to create and sustain new science based industries Nordic Perspectives on the Responsible Development of the Arctic: Pathways to Action Douglas C. Nord, 2020-10-30 This book investigates the multifaceted nature of change in today's Nordic Arctic and the necessary research and policy development required to address the challenges and opportunities currently faced by this region It focuses its attention on the recent efforts of the Nordic community to create specialized Centers of Excellence in Arctic Research in order to facilitate this process of scientific inquiry and policy articulation The volume seeks to describe both the steps that lead to this decision and the manner in which this undertaking has evolved The work highlights the research efforts of the four Centers and their investigations of a variety of issues including those related to ecosystem and wildlife management the revitalization resource dependent communities the emergence of new climate born diseases and the development of adequate modeling techniques to assist northern communities in their efforts at adaptation and resilience building Major discoveries and insights arising from these and other efforts are detailed and possible policy implications considered The book also focuses attention on the challenges of creating and supporting multidisciplinary teams of researchers to investigate such concerns and the methods and means for facilitating their collaboration and the integration of their findings to form new and useful perspectives on the nature of change in the contemporary Arctic It also provides helpful consideration and examples of how local and indigenous communities can be engaged in the co production of knowledge regarding the region The volume discusses how such research findings can be best communicated and shared between scientists policymakers and northern residents It considers the challenges of building common concern not just among different research disciplines but also between bureaucracies and the public Only when this bridge building effort is undertaken can true pathways to action be established
