Beijing from Below Harriet Evans, 2020-05-01 Between the early 1950s and the accelerated demolition and construction of Beijing's old city in preparation for the 2008 Olympics the residents of Dashalar one of the capital city's poorest neighborhoods and only a stone's throw from Tiananmen Square lived in dilapidated conditions without sanitation Few had stable employment Today most of Dashalar's original inhabitants have been relocated displaced by gentrification In Beijing from Below Harriet Evans captures the last gasps of subaltern life in Dashalar Drawing on oral histories that reveal memories and experiences of several neighborhood families she reflects on the relationships between individual family neighborhood and the state poverty and precarity gender politics and ethical living and resistance to and accommodation of party state authority Evans contends that residents' assertion of belonging to their neighborhood signifies not a nostalgic clinging to the past but a rejection of their marginalization and a desire for recognition Foregrounding the experiences of the last of Dashalar's older denizens as key to understanding Beijing's recent history Evans complicates official narratives of China's economic success while raising crucial questions about the place of the subaltern in history
