

The background of the cover is a light gray with a subtle grid pattern. Scattered across the top and sides are numerous three-dimensional geometric shapes, including cubes, pyramids, and prisms, in various colors like blue, orange, red, purple, and black. Some of these shapes are partially cut or broken, creating a sense of dynamic movement and complexity.

Learning to Educate Ernesto Schiefelbein, Noel F. McGinn, 2017-04-13. Learning to Educate: Proposals for the Reconstruction of Education in Developing Countries is a practical and strategic guide for education leaders and others who want to do more to improve the quality of curriculum, learning, teaching, and assessment. The book is also a philosophical guide that articulates and affirms the fundamental values and purposes of education in a rapidly changing world. It confronts us with the opportunity and the necessity to unravel bedrock assumptions and stimulate further discussion about the nature of teaching and learning. What does it take to change mindsets? And how do we bring about reconstruction without losing our groundings and bearings? The authors, Ernesto Schiefelbein and Noel McGinn, use the full weight of their extensive knowledge in education research, teaching policy, and action to argue that in order to reconstruct quality education, we must begin by improving its foundation. The result is a seasoned and superbly articulated examination of the principles and practices of teaching and learning, which focuses on the crucial need of all children to learn how to learn. Innovative, cultured, and consistently captivating, this book is bold and in the field of comparative and international education, unprecedented. Current and cutting-edge knowledge on critically important dimensions of effective teaching and learning. N. Dri Th r se Assi Lumumba, Cornell University. A treasury of insights into the education challenge currently proposed by the UN global 2030.

Dynamics of Effective Secondary Teaching, 2004. Dynamics of Effective Secondary Teaching integrates theory and research with current classroom practice to help future and in-service secondary teachers make instructional and management decisions for the purpose of improving instruction. Realistic scenarios, numerous examples and illustrations from all subject areas, classroom observation forms, and valuable websites are what makes this text so practical, providing preservice teachers a direct link to classroom practice. As with previous editions, the major feature of this book is the authors' emphasis on decision making as the thread that links all the topics together. Decision making is introduced in Chapter 1 as a process fundamental to educators and is revisited to enforce the application in each chapter. The authors' view of decision making considers it from a constructivist view of teaching and learning based on reflection and meaning making. Unique to this book is the inclusion in each chapter of a scenario in which a middle or secondary school teacher representing a wide range of subject areas and grade levels applies key ideas to the classroom. These scenarios, which appear near the beginning of each chapter, are referred to and analyzed throughout the chapter to provide a running commentary on the theoretical content being presented.

Best Practices for Teaching Beginnings and Endings in the Psychology Major, Dana Dunn, 2010-01-12. Introductory and capstone experiences in the undergraduate psychology program are crucial ways to engage students in their major and psychology department, impart realistic expectations, and prepare them for life beyond college. Providing the right orientation and capstone courses in psychology education is increasingly a concern of instructors, department chairs, program directors, and deans, and both types of courses have become important sources for gathering pre- and post-coursework assessment data for degree learning outcomes. The strategies presented here have been designed to help educators examine issues around teaching the introductory or careers course and developing a psychology-specific orientation program. The authors also provide concrete suggestions for building capstone experiences designed to fit the needs of a department, its pedagogical philosophy, or the educational agenda of the college or university. Undergraduate psychology curriculum designers and instructors can benefit from learning innovative and effective strategies for introducing the major to first-year students and at graduation for bringing closure, reinforcing the overall departmental learning outcomes, and helping students apply their disciplinary knowledge in capstone experiences and post-graduate life. In this collection of articles, psychology instructors involved in the improvement of teaching and learning review the research and share their own successes and challenges in the classroom. Discussions include effective practices for helping students become acclimated to and engaged in the psychology major.

application of developmental knowledge and learning communities to course design and use of quality benchmarks to improve introductory and capstone courses Other chapters describe innovations in the design of stand alone courses and offer concrete advice on counseling psychology graduates about how to use what they have learned beyond their higher education experiences
