QUESTION I have a 10-year-old male dog with a history of seizures. He has been on phenytoin for the last 5 years. His bloodwork is normal, and he is on a diet of low-fat, low-carbohydrate food. He has been having seizures again, and I am wondering if there is anything I can do to help him.

ANSWER There are several things you can do to help your dog. First, you should make sure that he is getting enough sleep. Second, you should make sure that he is not stressed. Third, you should make sure that he is not eating any food that might trigger a seizure. Fourth, you should make sure that he is not taking any medication that might interact with his phenytoin. Finally, you should make sure that he is not having any other health problems that might be causing the seizures.
