Personal Agency Beliefs in Self-regulation Wan Har Chong,2006 Self regulatory processes have predominantly been linked to the study of academic achievement in terms of learning behavior cognitive engagement and specific academic performance measures If poorly regulated academic behavior can have repercussions on social adaptation Motivational processes constitute the other key element in ensuring successful regulation as studies indicate that self regulation can effectively influence achievement outcomes if learners have positive beliefs about their personal ability to negotiate difficulties and work towards the desired learning outcomes This book takes a critical look at the role of self regulatory processes and personal agency beliefs in academic and social self regulatory functioning providing the reader with theoretical understanding of the issues and lending empirical support to the relevance of these processes in the East Asian educational context In this way the study explores the extent to which self regulation and personal agency beliefs can offer an alternative explanation for the academic performance of students Using a Motivation-based Instructional Model for Teacher Development and Students' Learning of Science Min-Jung Bae,2009 Readings from Educational Leadership Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development,1990 Influences of Instructional Settings on Learning and Cognitive Development Noel Entwistle,1995 Most of the papers in this special issue were presented at an invitational symposium held during an AERA annual meeting The symposium papers represent a range of different types of study within a coherent theme An additional paper represents another strand in European research on learning and instruction All five papers summarize research programs rather than individual studies and can be seen as progress reports on programmatic research which is developing theory and empirical evidence on a continuing basis The first four papers consider the influence of schooling on intellectual development and educational achievement They follow a progression from studies which concentrate more on formal testing of intellectual abilities to those which pay more attention to a description of the contexts of schooling in which students learn The final paper extends those analyses of learning in context by looking at the experiences of students in higher education and also at students ways of coping with particular types of studying they have to undertake Taken together the papers represent a European research attempt to give equal weight to the important contributions of relatively stable but still changing individual differences and of the various components of learning context that interact in complex ways with those personal characteristics in determining learning outcomes Motivation in Early School Years Janne Lepola,2000 Journal of Social Sciences ,2008 Human Learning Jeanne Ellis Ormrod,2008 Human Learning fifth edition is the leading text on learning theories applied to education It covers a broad range of learning theories including behaviorist social cognitive cognitive and developmental Complex learning and cognition including metacognition transfer and social processes in knowledge construction are also covered as is motivation Coverage demonstrates through the author's extremely lucid and engaging prose how different concepts relate to one another. The book provides dozens of proven examples and emphasizes meaningful learning that makes the fundamentals of these theories comprehensible to students with little or no prior coursework in psychology. Key revisions to this book include a thoroughly updated section on behaviorism, a new separate chapter on the developmental theories of Piaget and Vygotsky, and a reorganized motivation section.
