Time and Causality Marc J. Buehner, 2014-08-06 The problem of how humans and other intelligent systems construct causal representations from non causal perceptual evidence has occupied scholars in cognitive science for many decades Most contemporary approaches agree with David Hume that patterns of covariation between two events of interest are the critical input to the causal induction engine irrespective of whether this induction is believed to be grounded in the formation of associations Shanks Dickinson 1987 rule based evaluation White 2004 appraisal of causal powers Cheng 1997 or construction of Bayesian Causal Networks Pearl 2000 Recent research however has repeatedly demonstrated that an exclusive focus on covariation while neglecting contiguity another of Hume's cues results in ecologically invalid models of causal inference Temporal spacing order variability predictability and patterning all have profound influence on the type of causal representation that is constructed The influence of time upon causal representations could be seen as a bottom up constraint though current bottom up models cannot account for the full spectrum of effects However causal representations in turn also constrain the perception of time Put simply two causally related events appear closer in subjective time than two equidistant unrelated events This reversal of Hume's conjecture referred to as Causal Binding Buehner Humphreys 2009 is a top down constraint and suggests that our representations of time and causality are mutually influencing one another At present the theoretical implications of this phenomenon are not yet fully understood Some accounts link it exclusively to human motor planning appealing to mechanisms of cross modal temporal adaptation or forward learning models of motor control However recent demonstrations of causal binding in the absence of human action and analogous binding effects in the visual spatial domain challenge such accounts in favour of Bayesian Evidence Integration This Research Topic reviews and further explores the nature of the mutual influence between time and causality how causal knowledge is constructed in the context of time and how it in turn shapes and alters our perception of time We draw together literatures from the perception and cognitive science as well as
