Writing Groups for Doctoral Education and Beyond Claire Aitchison, Cally Guerin, 2014-04-24 Writing is the principal means by which doctoral candidature is monitored and measured this combined with the growing tendency to use publications as proxy measures of individual and institutional productivity underlines the centrality of writing in academia One of the central questions for scholars in higher education therefore is How do we make writing happen and it is this question which the book seeks to answer The book provides detailed illustrations of collaborative writing pedagogies which are powerfully enabling and through theoretical and conceptual interrogation of these practices the authors point the way for individuals as well as institutions to establish writing groups that are lively responsive and context specific Key topics include new pedagogical responses for increased writing productivity and the push to publish innovations for supporting academic writing quality confidence and output scaffolding the thesis writing process new theoretical explorations of collaborative writing approaches writing group formulations and pedagogical approaches writing groups for non native speakers of English writing as women in higher education A particular strength of this book is that it showcases the potential of writing groups for advanced academic writing by pulling together a unique mix of authors and scholarly approaches representing a wide range of new theoretical and pedagogical frames from diverse countries Writing Groups for Doctoral Education and Beyond will be attractive to academics seeking new ways to advance their writing productivity doctoral students their supervisors and those who are tasked with the job of supporting them through the completion and dissemination of their research Conversations in Context Kathryn Fitzgerald, Kathy Fitzgerald, Heather Bruce, Anna Vogt, Sharon Stasney, 1997-10 Conversations in Context Identity Knowledge and College Writing invites students to learn about and participate in a series of related conversations about student identities the aims of the university and the conventions of academic writing Rather than seeing academic writing as consisting of objective statements of truth the editors of this textbook view it as a social construction of knowledge that requires rhetorical choices as well as empirical research This book represents academic writing as a sequence of continuing conversations within discourse communities provides a variety of opportunities to engage with and participate in these conversations Loving Writing Wendy M.K. Shaw, 2021-09-22 This writing textbook bridges factual critical and expressive modes of writing to help students develop a reflective sense of why and how to write for university professional and public audiences Exploring the ways in which writing builds tools for argument both in and beyond the university it enables students to break out of the dusty and formulaic patterns of writing that too often threaten to render academic studies irrelevant In a playful personal essayistic style it examines existing academic writing methods and develops new modes of narrative based expression rooted in the humanities Reflective analysis invites emerging writers to self consciously craft convincing and impassioned writing practices using an expanded methodological toolbox It aims to imbue academic writing with the expressive potential of artistic research by transforming existing methods of articulating analysis within a broader expressive system developing skills more typical of creative writing such as providing a setting considering frame engaging emotions expansion and concision If we believe in the value of our thoughts discoveries and arguments we must enable them to sing Loving Writing can be used as a textbook for advanced or introductory college writing courses and provides innovative guidance to liberal arts students seeking to develop their writing abilities Multimedia and Multivocality in a Basic Writing Classroom Jeffrey Niel Maxson,1996 Academic Literacy in the English Classroom Carolyn R. Boiarsky,2003 What do high school English teachers need to teach to get their students ready for college And how do college instructors help underprepared students succeed once they re there These are two pertinent questions for which Carolyn Boiarsky and the contributors to this volume have some answers Boiarsky put together this book to pre empt the problems teachers face in class particularly with first generation college students and others from working class and immigrant families First she discusses the content and socialization issues involved in academic literacy and exactly what that phrase means Then she and other educators describe activities and strategies that teachers can use to help students acquire the skills they need to read and write at the college level These strategies involve information transfer and learning to learn the craft and the art of writing academic prose from developing a felt sense of writing to achieving flow promoting active readership encouraging exploration of texts through note taking notecard making and mapping engaging with literature reading as transaction the process of constructing meaning learning the language and rhetorical conventions of the academy with particular attention to vernacular dialect speakers and English language learners What the academy demands is the ability to read often technical jargon laden textbooks to write research papers using appropriate field specific language and conventions and to discuss topics in the form appropriate to that field The strategies offered in this book will help teachers prepare students to accomplish these tasks whether American born native speakers ESL students or children of the working middle or professional class The Bookman ,1907
