Abstract

The agency requires that the quantity and timing for setting the 1990 flow stay within 10% and 10% of the 1980 flow. The permit holder must submit a flow plan to the permittee's state, showing the flow patterns that will be used to achieve the flow and the volume for the permit. The flow plan must also show that the flow plan is consistent with the permit. The permit holder must also submit a flow plan to the permittee's state, showing the flow patterns that will be used to achieve the flow and the volume for the permit. The flow plan must also show that the flow plan is consistent with the permit. The permit holder must also submit a flow plan to the permittee's state, showing the flow patterns that will be used to achieve the flow and the volume for the permit. Thus, through statistical control, the timing of the current cashflow to the FTE determines the optimal string, and the optimal β will reflect a negative (or positive) FTE dependence on operating costs.
